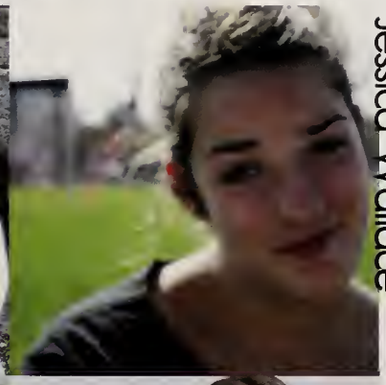
The 2012 yearbook editors would like to give thanks to all who have contributed in any way to the overall production of this year's IHS yearbook. From creating pages to gathering quotes and records for sports teams, everything was a tremendous help and we could not have done this without our staff. AND, special thanks to Regina Riel who stepped up this past fall to assume the role of "Photography Editor"! She has been an incredible, creative worker and strong support.

YEARBOOK STAFF

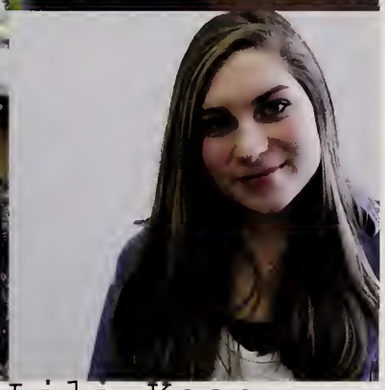
LETTER FROM THE EDITORS

Rachel Mahoney



Jessica Wallace

Marissa Lundy



Lili Koen

The theme we chose for this year's book is "PURSUE". Regardless of where we come from or what interests we have, all of us are striving for something. The concept of high school itself is a pursuit. Some of us can't wait to make it to the end of the year, others, the end of the day. Within high school, each person is seeking something different. A good GPA and an impressive resume are universally desired, however,the list goes on, and each goal is as unique as the people working toward them. These four years of a person's life are critical. The generally competitive atmosphere and overwhelming pressure can be difficult for a teenager to combat 180 days of their year. This doesn't seem to stop most of us though. For some reason, for some "pursuit", we continue to wake up before the sun rises, take in more knowledge than seems possible for our already overactive minds, and participate in whatever sports, clubs, or programs we have an affinity for (despite the severe lack of sleep we may be suffering from).
The editors of this year's yearbook felt the need to emphasize this determination we share and point out that, no matter what goals we chose to chase, all of us are connected in that we are pursuing something. Even if that something is not the same, the pursuit still draws us together.
For the seniors leaving behind six or seven hour school days and chicken patty thursdays, fire drills conveniently scheduled during a downpour, the three note class bell, an entire month worth of spirit week, favorite teachers, breakfast in directed, six digit lunch codes, and a grand total of 80 permittable late passes among many other things, we only wish you the very best of luck, wherever you're headed, in your future pursuits. And to those who still have their time at IHS, please make the most of it and recognize what you, yourself, are pursuing. But above all, don't take it too seriously.

-The Editors

PRINCIPALS

Dear Class of 2012:

This Yearbook marks the significance of your final year at Ipswich High School and the culmination of your K-12 education. The photos and words are meant to give you a snapshot to look back at many years from now.

Your graduation in 2012 is all the more significant to me as you will be the final class in my role as Ipswich High School Principal. We each prepare for the culmination of one portion of our lives yet the beginning of the next phase. I am pleased to share these melancholy moments with so many talented, involved and concerned young people in this class.

I wish each of you the very best as you prepare for life's challenges and opportunities. Be a contributor to a fulfilling life. Your preparation at Ipswich High School should serve you well. Your memories will remain with us for many years.

Barry R. Cahill

Nick Andreas

Although he is a Danvers resident, Nick Andreas has already made an impact on the Ipswich Tigers Football Team. As the starting Varsity Quarterback, he has led the team to some very solid wins this season, like beating Amesbury for the first time since they played them in 2006, the year they won the Super Bowl. The Amesbury victory proved one of the most exciting games in recent IHS football history, ending only after four hard fought overtimes and tying the league record for most overtimes in a single game.

Jesse Brink

It's good to have a mixture of music and other things in your life. Freshman Jesse Brink plays percussion in three IHS music groups, including Concert Band, Symphony Orchestra, and Jazz Band, as well as being a technician for the school's productions. "There's an ancient Chinese proverb that says: 'If thine enemy wrong thee, buy each of his children a drum.' BOOM."

Jake Manchester

"Some people think I talk too much, but to me it's an activity that I would be lost without," says Jake. He's the loudest freshman wherever he goes or whomever he knows. Jake can make just about anyone laugh with a simple gesture or funky facial expression. Don't let his mouth fool you though, his mind is just as strong; his impressive vocabulary comes from all the reading he does in his spare time.

Riley Noone

Showing off her talent during Spirt Week, Riley Noone practices hard to execute her Scorpion, one of the most difficult body positions to pull. "During practice I pretend I'm at a competition so I can pull my stunts as hard as possible." It was exciting stunts such as these that helped carry the cheerleaders to their epic win at nationals.

This is the first year there have been members of the high school math league that were also on the middle school math league, and it definitely pays off! The math league went from placing 6th and 7th last year to pulling past all the other teams. To date, they are regularly placing 2nd! Captains Meg Olsen and Colleen Reynolds both say, "We love our freshmen, they show up for every practice with a smile and never doubt the ability of our math league, regardless of the outstanding reputation our opposing teams may have!" When asked for an interview, the freshmen all came up with silly math jokes and different ways to boast about math league, and the food...However, they all agreed on one thing: "Whoever comes to math league, stays in math league!"

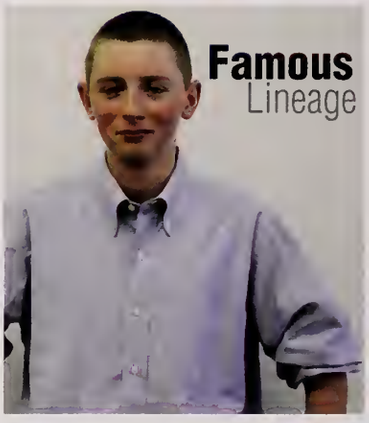
Sam Stone

During the summer before his freshman year, Sam Stone decided to take on drumming. His determination only pushes him further when he hears a new drum beat in a song and wants to be able to play it. It doesn't matter if the beats are fast or slow, Sam can play them all. When asked how he continues to grow as a drummer he said, "I like to push myself to try to drum faster and clearer. I was even told once by my dad's friend that he thinks I should go to the open mic night at Stone Soup to drum."



Seneca Freylue

Seneca is not your average freshman. His senior brother Kai and himself are the grandsons of Pulitzer Prize winning author, John Updike, who is best known for his "Rabbit" series. When asked what it felt like to be related to the famous writer, Seneca said, "It feels strange, there are always expectations to be artistic like my grandfather and the rest of my family." He remembers his grandfather being a very kind and warm hearted man, but always very distant. According to him his grandfather's work is filled with very compex concepts, which flew over his head when he was younger, but that he's begining to understand with age. The best memory he has of his grandfather occured shortly before he passed away of lung cancer back in 2009, when he was eleven years old. "When he was dying he made a point to have an in depth coversation with all of the grandkids, it was one of our last conversations." During that conversation Seneca really came to understand his granfather, and gained a new appreciation for the man. When people hear the name John Updike, many think of the famous author know for his tales of middle-class angst, but for this young men someone completely different comes to mind.

Jenny Ames

She is one of the few high schoolers in Ipswich history that participates in 3 musical groups at once. While playing the viola and trombone , Jenny Ames also sings as an Alto in chorus. Not only is she busy with groups in school, but you can find her backstage as a Techie, and in the pool, competing on the school swim and dive team. She can do it all! "There are definitely times where everything I do becomes too much but I love every second of it. My crazy life has lead me to meet some of the most amazing and kindest people, it's an experience I'll never regret."

Fiona Baker

Not only is she one of the most social and most talkative people in her grade, but she has a hidden talent for juggling . Give her a few tennis bells or even some fruit and she will be sure to blow your mind with her mad skills. "I heve been juggling for e long time now. It's something I picked up while I was bored at home with a bowl of fruit near by."

Erik Fyrer was brought up to the varsity basketball team as a freshman and led the Tigers to their first win of the season. "Playing varsity as a freshman will definetly help me in the years to come," said Erik. He is starting at forward for the Tigers this season as a sophomore.

Nate Glaster

Nate started both ways as a sophomore on the football team. He played wide receiver and cornerback, excelling as just a sophomore playing against mostly juniors and seniors on the other teams. " I feel like this year helped me gain experience to make myself better for the years to come."

Mariah Walker

Determination, drive, and dedication. Voted as captain for her junior year of high school, Mariah Walker's love for cheering is endless, even after suffering an injury to her finger. "I try to not let it bother me. Between run-throughs of the routine I always ice it, and go back on the mat."

Dane Tolstrup

His passion for the game of hockey has brought him back to the ice after being out for two years. Coming into his first high school hockey season as a sophomore he will make quite an impact in the up coming season for the Vikings of Rockport.

She works hard at the Crane Beach snack shack in the summer and Dairy Queen all year . She plays on the varsity soccer team, and this year she is going to be playing tennis in trade for softball. "I try to do my best to live life, do well in school but still be with my friends too."

Jessy Lecaj

Although she lives in Ipswich now, she didn't always, like the rest of us townies. Jessy was born in Albania and lived there untill she was five years old. She is fluent in both English and Albainian. She also recently took a trip for a few weeks to see her whole family who still lives all over Europe. As a member of two cheering teams she is all cheer all the time. She is focused on doing her best and practicing every day. Bridget is the "secondary" to the middle stunt group and pyramid, and without her the stunt wouldn't rise. With her help the IHS cheerleaders have taken first at all competitions and second in the state. Nationals kept the season going on longer than ever. "Our team is a living example of how hard work really does pay off. The feeling of winning and making history is one that you'll remember for a lifetime," says Bridget.

Sarah Nylen

As class president, dancer, member of People to People, clarinetist, and adventurer, Sarah strives for the best. She has one busy life to juggle every day. It starts at school. As class president, she puts together everything that needs to be done, while juggling all the regular challenges of school. After school, days usually end at her favorite coffee shop, Zumi's. Ballet, jazz, modern and company, dance totals nine hours a week, but Sarah doesn't let that stop her. Every Monday night she and her friends have classy dinner parties and go adventuring in the woods when able. She is often reminded of her dream to own her own business someday, by looking to Marylin Monroe for inspiration "I am dreaming my hardest."

at 8 o'clock, on the 14th night of the 11th month, 2011, parents and students alike put on their fanciest threads and headed to the Ipswich Country Club. Their motive? The Walk This Way Fashion Show, a fundraiser for the IHS senior class of 2012.

The evening was faux pas free, and full of the chicest designs, all provided by businesses, both local and out of town. "The fashion show was great, we had a huge amount of participation from both genders, an improvement from last year" Gina Riel told the yearbook editors after the event wrapped up. The night's profit, from ticket sales as well as the silent auction, brings in the most money for the dominant grade in the school, and is responsible for allowing them to have a memorable prom and senior week. This is one tradition that will never go out of style!

MODEL FRIENDSHIP

Lisa Kaucher and Hannah Lopez aren't new to modeling. Hannah Lopez started modeling her sophmore year, and has been to many photoshoots and runway competitions in places like NYC. Lisa Kaucher was on the cover of the Hungy Hungry Hippos game and takes many aspiring model pictures when she's with friends.

Tree Huggers

Autumn in Ipswich, in many people's opinion, is the most beautiful season here. It's the best time to get out, because the weather is perfect and the foliage is so vibrant. Ask Sarah Nylen and Kyle Cantrell, who are seen here, climbing a tree at Strawberry Hill on Jeffreys Neck Road. You can always see them and many other Ipswich High School students romping around in the fallen leaves and crisp air, trying to grab the last bit of nice weather in town. Sarah Nylen says with excitement, "Fall is my favorite. I love sweater weather and being able to walk around outside befor it plummets to 20 degrees in town. The only downside of it is th stress of school starting!"

MOUNTING SUCCESS

NUMBER ONE FAN

Captain of the Varsity Football Team, Chris Desmond, knows how to show off that letterman jacket! He and the rest of the football squad showed their school spirit by going to support the undefeated cheerleaders at CALs, which they ended up winning for their very first time!

Many Ipswich residents can say they've tried, and possibly failed when they've been put to the test in the maze.As time has passed, they've continued to add to the activities there. The farm now boasts a trampoline, and complimentary flashlights so patrons can attempt the maze at night! The Topsfield Fair is also a definite hotspot in the fall! With plenty of fun nausea-inducing rides, and money-swallowing fair games. For most, the Topsfield Fair provides more than enough entertainment! The fair's food isn't that bad either, if you're in the mood for fried dough and corn dogs!

lex Beauvais (upper right), was the top scorer this year for the swim and dive teams, and plans t further his swimming career in college next year. As captain and team leader, his diving scores ontinuously rose every meet. Most recently he earned an "8", an extremely high score for a high school diver. It goes without saying; Alex is a natural in the water and a great overall leader. Despite his individual accomplishments, he is a firm believer in teamwork.

"eamwork has always been vital to the success of our team. Having someone at the end of te pool cheering for you always does much more than one might think. In swim races, a few seconds can mean the difference between a win or a loss," said captain Alex.

TIME OF ARRIVAL

7:00 p.m.

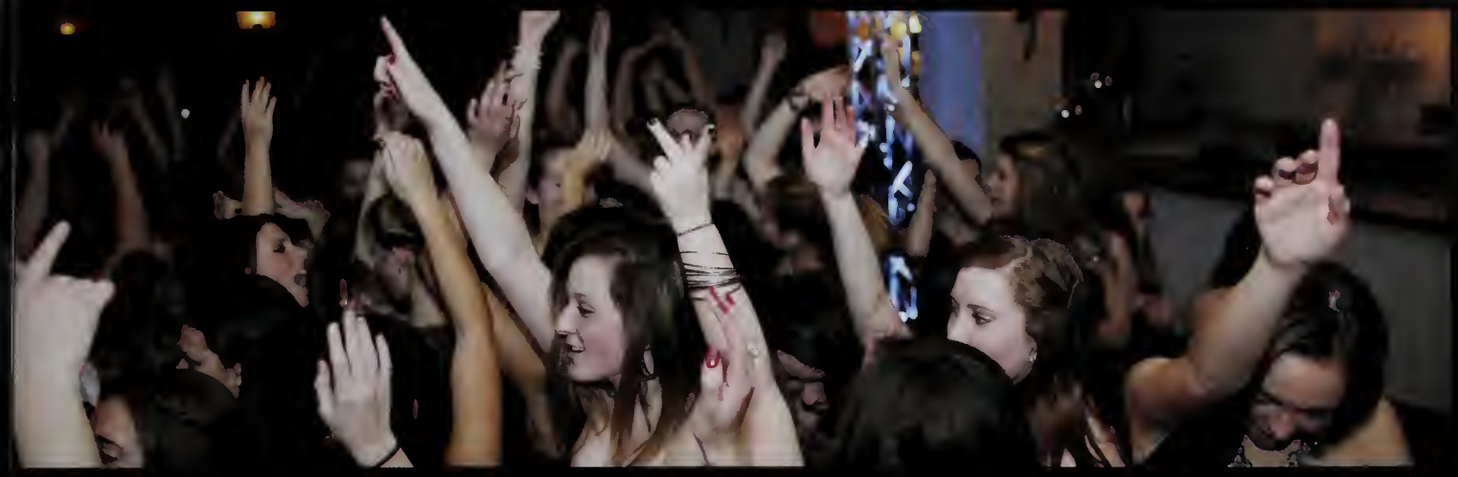
Battle of the Sexes

To the right, senior and junior girls were called to line up on the dance floor facing all their male counterparts. In a competition that involved shouting, dancing, and following the DJ's odd instructions, both genders came together (seperately of course) in their attempts to show each other up. Despite the brief rivalry, the night had a strong feeling unification and togetherness overall.

To the left, senior Jesse Kozacki appears ready to flip forward during his moment in the center circle of the dance floor.



January 28th

at 7:30 PM the junior and senior classes at Ipswich High School entered the Ipswich Country Club, donning semi-formal attire and ready to dance. The night started off with a brief mingling period, full of compliments, conversations, and endless photo opportunities. After dining however, the real fun began. This year's DJ, from Total Control Entertainment, provided continuous song streaming that kept the energy high. To the right, senior girls Lisa Kaucher and Erin Monahan visit the DJ's booth to scribble down song selections. Eventually, before the night ended, most people's choices were played and everyone had a chance to dance with their friends, drink a Shirly Temple, and make the event a memorable one.

explore

For those involved with music at IHS, April of 2011 was an auspicious month. Band, orchestra, and chorus members alike were all given the oppurtunity to travel to the UK and perform for awaiting English citizens. In April of 2010, students in these concert groups were told of the possible trip, except it wasn't all good news at first.

There was a chance that the England Tour of 2012 was going to be the England Tour of 2013 when the issue was first discussed amongst music teachers and directors. Student musicians were asked to consider the proposal for moving the date back a year, mostly due to the poor economy and cost of the entire excursion. Everyone was given a small paper to bring home and look at with parents and guardians (whoever was probably responsible for payment). After coming to a family conclusion, they were to check a box, one indicating desire to move the trip back, or one expressing their wish for a trip in 2012, as originally planned.

The outcome was a fortunate one, and can most likely be acredited to the senior class of 2011 who, if the trip was pushed back, would not get to go!

So then, one year later,roughly 150 musically inclined students at IHS boarded British Airways, crossed the Atlantic, and landed at Heathrow, ready for a memorable time of foreign exploration and cultural immersion. From the scenic town of Cambridge, to the parallel universe of Ipswich, to Bath, Bristol, and finally London itself, the groups performed at their finest, impressing their English audiences in each location. Time was given generously, considering the demanding schedule, for each student to get a taste of British living. Pasties were devoured, gaps were minded, and tea was politely sipped from day to day. And from talking to those who went on the trip, it seems they certainly won't forget such activities and hope to go back to the kingdom of royal blood and early punk rock. -Lili Koen

the CHEMISTRY of friendship.

Meghan Olsen and Megan Freiberger sat together for dinner at the prom, and (despite their different academic taste) have been great friends throughout high school. In their junior year, both took A.P. Chemistry, but Meghan (a.k.a. Meg) really loves math and Megan is more passionate about the sciences. Meg Olsen is captain of Math League, and Megan Freiberger is president of the Environmental Club.

junior PROM { 2011 }

queen of PROMS.

Lisa Kaucher, Nyra Constant, and Becca Dunlop rocked their stunning dresses and pearly smiles at last year's prom. Lisa says she lives for prom. "I went to four proms last year. Junior Prom was my favorite though, because it was the very first I went to that was my own."

stylin' smiles.

Tyler Hale, his girlfriend Whitney Thomas, and their close friend Andrew Whippen got all dolled up for one of high school's most beloved evenings last May. The trio looked fit for the red carpet and ready to dance it up; especially Whitney!...She says, "I just love dancing, anywhere and everywhere!".

Nick Remy, Peter Eliopolus, Brenden Gallagher, and Ethan Butler showed up to the prom looking sleek in their black suits and striking some serious poses for the camera.

ALL grown up.

Lexi LaFrance and Lauren Rybicki posed for a quick picture outside the Hellenic Center in the midst of excitement before the prom started. They are friends now, as seniors, and have been since the day they were born (literally)!

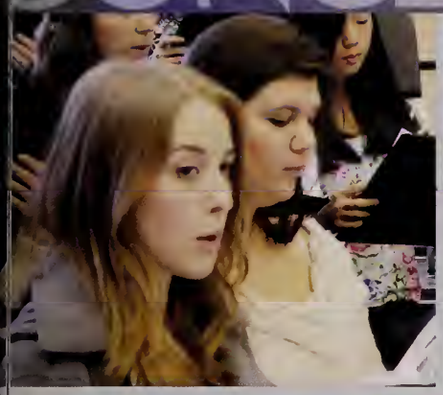
AND ALL THAT JAZZ

Christian Perry, a senior who plays tenor saxophone, has been playing in the Ipswich High School Jazz band since freshman year. He also joined the High school music programs on their trip to England in April 2011.



Music in the SOUL

Jess Wallace has been singing since she she can remember and has played guitar since Middle school, "I don't go for music theory, I sing because it's natural and that's the best feeling a person can have."

Music has become essential to the Ipswich High school experience. The majority of our school is involved in music; our insturments range from violins to trumpets- to our voices.Our success has led us to China, to England and we have competed and placed high in Senior Districts and All-States- high honors recieved for our excellence in music and enthusiasm for the artform. We all may use different instruments, but together we make a lovely tune.

Create Capture & Express

In the Visual Arts Department, there are many different classes one can take to expand their creative side. From painting, drawing, and ceramics, to sculpture and digital photography, these classes give students freedom to express themselves however they please.

This sculpture was done by seniors Amy Stone and Kierra Kaluzny during the first quarter this year. Made mostly out of chicken wire, this sculpture (of a paparazzi in a hot air balloon) caused a whole lot of scrapes and cuts while in the making! The basket the man is in was hand weaved by Amy and Kierra as well.

This sculpture was created by senior Alex Bucklin. Alex and his piece were recognized this year at the Endicott College High School Art Competition. Al Miner, Curator at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts selected Alex as recipient for the "Excellence in 3D Art" award.

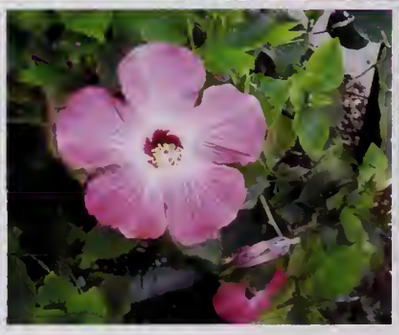
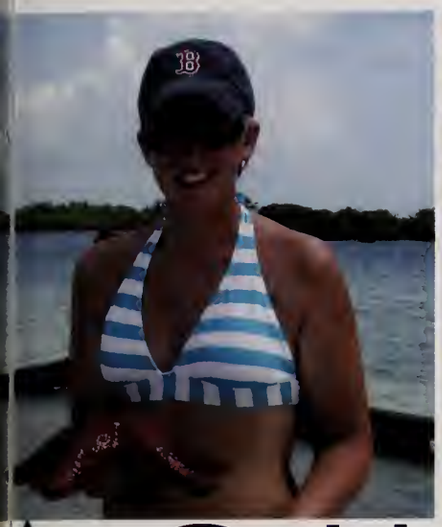
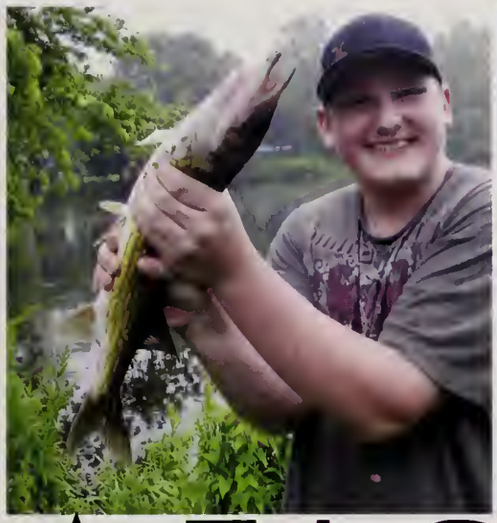
SUMMER LOVIN'

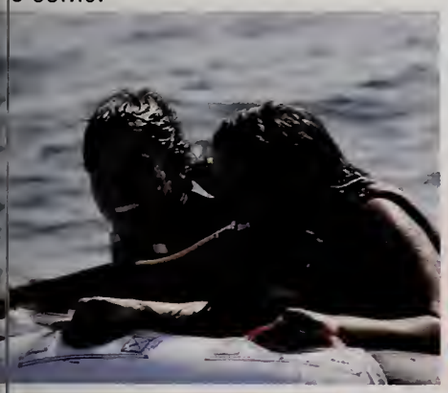


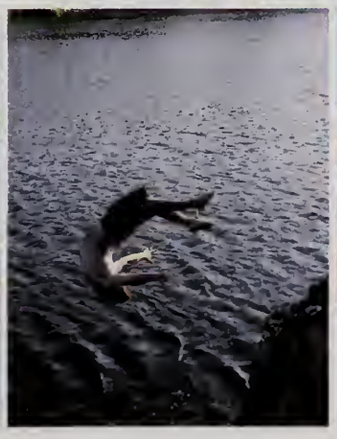




AQUATIC LIFE

f you ask someone from Ipswich what heir favorite thing to do is, they are most ikely going to say something that has to do vith the ocean. As a seafaring community, Ipswich is right on the ocean and as a esult, everyone's schedule seems to revolve around a tide chart. During the summer many people prefer to travel by boat, jet ski, canoe or kayak, as they make heir way to Middle Ground for a day in the sun. Whether they're fishing, clamming or jumping off the bridge, most "Ipswichians" make the water a way of life. Some say living on the ocean is a privilege; others say it just happens to be where you end up. Either way, living in this nautical town could be the best thing that has happened o some.





A summer IN SCOTLAND

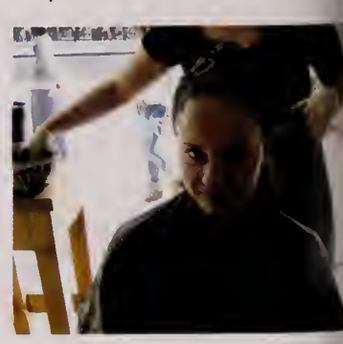
The Ipswich High School Drama Company was one of thirty schools in Nortl America chosen to perform ,The Princess Plays, in Edinburgh, Scotland Thirty seven of the cast and crew flew over for a two week adventure in th Highlands. Along the way there were trips to London, an opportunity t experience a traditional Scottish ceremony, and simply free time to explor Scotland.

SEEING RED IN LONDON

Just as the red telephone booths are an icon to London, our very own red head, Shannon Colter, has become iconic to our IHS stage productions.

TO PLAY

When not performing, the ca and crew took to the city ar streets. There were games playe in a local courtyard and time t purchase traditional kilts. Rach Corning was able to find a covete record whileIsabella Cassanotrie a new hairstyle. This downtim gave the students a gre opportunity to experience th unique culture of Scotland.

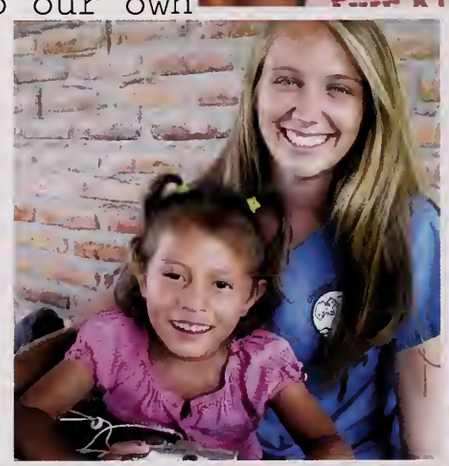


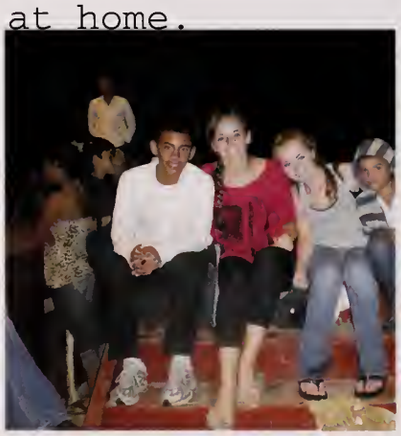
AND TO PERFORM
HE LOST HALF-HOUR

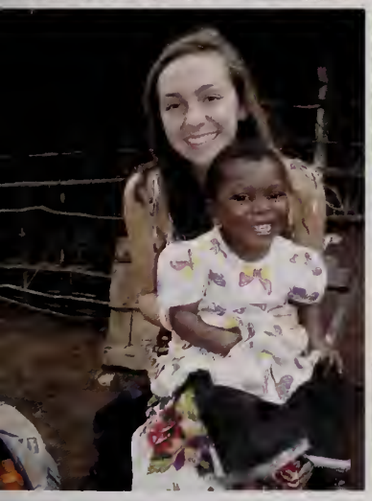
Taking his turn in the spotlight, John Gayton plays, Bobo. He is sent to the court of Miss Patty and her court princesses who give Bobo ridiculous requests. His last request is to go find the lost half-hour. Along the way to the edge of the horizon, Bobo comes across a multitude of interesting characters. With this lost half-hour, Bobo must use it wisely to help save his love interest from the dragon.

HONDURAS

Hola Honduras! After traveling to Honduras for many years, Lia Ziegler brought her heart for the children to Ipswich High School. Lia organized a trip for twenty-five Ipswich High School students. The group spent seven days at NPH Honduras. There, they worked with orphaned children. The students also participated in the Olympiadas, a two-day competition similar to our own high school's Spirit Week. This included, field hockey, volley ball, and a dance-off. The trip impacted the students of Ipswich and changed they way they appreciate their families at home.







Real Rafikis! Lisa Kaucher and Gina Riel met in school, but bonded over their shared love for the same Kenyan children. Gina organized a talent show and Lisa sang in it for the organization, "Kupenda" for the Children. They both went on seperate trips to the same school to work with hearing and physically impaired children. Erin Monohan and Sam Brown were also friends from school, but decided to take the next step and travel to Tanzania together. Then, embracing her true passion, Erin travled to Ghana on her own. All four girls will graduate this year and hopefully continue their passion for Africa in the future.

You make us laugh, you make us smile
We Love just who You are,
You've worked so hard & accomplished dreams
Keep shooting for the stars!

You will always be our Princess
No matter how successful you become,
We are so proud of all you've done
And the Best is yet to come !

So entering these next four years
There are a few things you should do,
Follow your heart, have no regrets
And Always be True to You !

We are so proud of you Peanut !
Love,

Psssssssst.....

It is not the critic who counts;

*not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, who comes up short again and again, because there is no effort without error and shortcoming; but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows great enthusiasms, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who, at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who neither know victory nor defeat.

You were a star from the beginning, beautiful & brilliant. As you step out into the world, dream big, be kind to all, keep love in your heart & lead your life with courage & honesty & you will blaze a trail that others will walk. And, as the winding road of your life leads you to adventure & success, happiness & prosperity, laugh lots & know always that you are so deeply loved by us.

Best Wishes to the Class of 2012!

Jessica Wallace

Seems like only yesterday you were our "little girl." Now, in the blink of an eye you've grown up and you're getting ready to step out into the world. This is your time to make it what you want it to be.

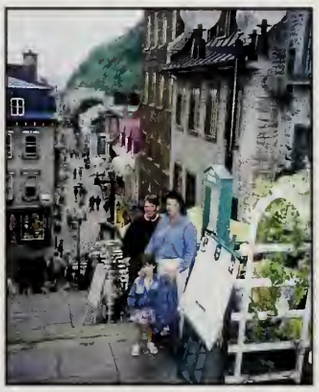
Follow your heart. Remember...it's the journey that matters more than the final destination.

Love always & forever,
Mom, Dad & Jeffrey

Rachel Anne

Remember, 20 years from now you'll be more disappointed by the things you didn't do than by the ones you did do. So throw off the bowlines, sail away from safe harbor, catch the trade winds in your sails and EXPLORE, DREAM and DISCOVER!

Love Always,
Mom and Dad



Lisa Kaucher

Austin Jaworski & Rhiannan Thompson

Mom, Dad, Aunt, Uncle, Michelle, and Kelsey are so proud of you both. Always remember to treat others the way you would like to be treated. Find some thing to be passionate about and be willing to take risks to achieve your dreams.

Brendan Barry

Your sunny ways and kind disposition put smiles on our hearts. From your earliest inventions, your inquisitive nature, and hard work have made you into the student that you are. Stay yourself, never stop asking "how's it made?" and may your dreams come true.

Congratulations, we are so proud of you.

Love,
Dad, Mom, & Molly

Dakota Pappas

Congratulations to the Class of 2012!

Believe in your dreams!

"Your time is limited, so don't waste it living someone else's life.
Don't let the noise of others' opinions drown out your own inner voice.
And most important, have the courage to follow your heart and intuition.
They somehow already know what you truly want to become.
